Sharing all articles

Posted by argonstudios - 2009/12/04 18:30

Edwin,

I have purchased your article sharing component and I have looked through the forums. I have created a template then created a new slave site and tried to replicate the entire master site into the slave site, but none of the articles are pulling over.

What am I doing wrong? Tried everything that I can see.

Again, I just want to alias a domain on our server, then login to JMS and create a new domain name and have it replicate the master site exactly but with a different design.

Thanks,
Shannon

==========

Re:Sharing all articles

Posted by edwin2win - 2009/12/04 18:47

Shanon, you can use the "Article Sharing for JMS" to create new menu items where you use the "multisites articles" menu type.

Once you have created the menu item with "Mutlisites Articles", this mean that you can replicate this website and it will always read the articles that was defined with the menu type "multisites articles". This is because you have specified the Site IDendtifier in the menu type "Multisites articles" that you always pulling the correct article.

So you have to start create the menu item that use the "article sharing" before replicating your website with a JMS template rule.

==========