Rocket themes have recently changed their installer to bypass joomla at the installation of their template.

Therefore, the extension can not be found in the master website because they use a "temporary extension" to install the final extension.
They created a temporary extension that is an installer that bypass joomla.

Contact "Rocket Themes" to report them the issue with their new installer.

If you are runing with JMS 1.3, it is possibly to temporarly ignore the manifest and version checking during the installation. In that case, you should be able to re-install the template in the slave as this control can be ignored. This is a parameter in the setting menu of JMS 1.3
