Error 1142 THE SOLUTION

Posted by ZeusMM - 2011/03/07 09:33

Hi everyone

I have followed a number of threads that all seem to point in the same direction. i.e., to get the sharing of users to work, one needs to have a level of access on the SQL server that is beyond the normal setting.

My hosting provider immediately responded to my request by pointing out that the required level of user is available on the main cpanel username and password.

This is quite an elegant solution and demonstrates that they are clearly thinking about how to best support their clients.

I would therefore recommend anyone think of using Edwin's excellent product to consider using SITEGROUND hosting.

Kind regards

Andi

PS I am a Siteground customer and in no way affiliated to them...

Here it is some additional hosting provide that we know are also OK.

hostgator web hosting also provide cPanel that is working perfectly and provide the correct MySQL user privileges.

Godaddy shared linux hosting use a specific interface that is also OK.

We are not affiliated with them.
They are just popular.
