I know that the master and slaves sites aren't sharing any table in the database, but can I share the users from the masters and the slaves with any bridge or something?

I think there are component that allow synchronise the users but I can not tell you more because I don't know those components.

User sharing is planned for june or july 2009.

i haven't found any component for user sharing.
I dropped 3 tables in the db, slavejos_user, slavejos_core_acl_aro and slavejos_core_acl_groups_aro_map and created 3 new views with this sql query
CREATE VIEW slavejos_users AS SELECT * FROM jos_users

I got a problem now, the admin of one site is admin for all the sites, how can i put an admin as admin of only 1 site?

I see that you have used a SQL view that I expect to use in next JMS 1.2.x to share any component.
I think this is a good solution but as you have noticed, this means that all the users are shared to all the websites.

Therefore, the administrator of one website is also the administrator all the websites.
Normal as you have shared the users.
I don't see any solution except to create a special component that will provide the additional information that could be checked before Joomla.

with the old version of joomla i used this component

http://joomlacode.org/gf/project/jmultisites/frs/

it works great, can you create something like this one for joomla 1.5?
this component can share component, modules, articles, users and more, but i can still change the group for every slave site
