share users between already created slave site?

I've got my master site (with all my users set up) and I've created a slave site. Without starting over with a new slave site, is there any way I can share the users from the master site?

If you want to share the master website instead of a fresh slave site like presented in the video 16 http://www.jms2win.com/tutorial#jms12x-16, this is also possible and you just have to create the template based on the "master db" instead of the tpl_master as presented in the video.
