Can i replicate slave site from master site

Posted by visualsparks - 2010/03/02 11:20

Hello Every One

How we create slave site from master site like components of master site will be in slave site. is there any tutorial for this or any other information.

My other question is if we install the component in master site then what the procedure for this to automatically display in slave site.

Please describe me detail because i m the new user of joomla multi sites

Thanks.

==========

Re: Can i replicate slave site from master site

Posted by edwin2win - 2010/03/02 18:56

Replicate the master website is already described several times in the forum.
In summary, you create JMS template and select the template site = ""
After that you create a slave based on this rule.

You have to use the JMS tools to re-install and perhaps also propagate into the children websites.
This is always performed in 2 steps.
a) Install the extension in the master
b) Go in JMS tools and select the extension that you want to install in the slave site with its potential propagation into the children

==========