JomComment and article sharing

Posted by rlab - 2010/03/16 18:39

Hello,

I have Jom Comment installed on my master site as well as my slave site. When you display an article on either site, you get the comment form after the article. I then installed the article sharing component on both sites. I can share an article from the master site on the slave site and visa versa, but on both sites, the shared article doesn't display the comment form. Only the article contents is displayed.

Is something setup incorrectly or is this a limitation of the article sharing functionality, that JomComment will not be processed on the articled article?

I shared a blog category page from the master site on the slave site and on this page the Comment link displayed, but when you click it you get a 404 error and are taken to the master site. Why wouldn't this go to the article's comment form on the master site?

Thank you.

==========

Re: JomComment and article sharing

Posted by edwin2win - 2010/03/17 00:41

We have not developped "Multisites JomComment".
So this is normal that it does not have any "multisites" functionalities.

With the "Article Sharing for JMS", you can read artciles from any websites.
So you master can read slave X.
Slave X, can read the master.

==========