Same files, different database?

Posted by AnyWay - 2010/05/01 22:49

Hello,
I have just bought this great component.

Question:
I have an existing website, i'd like to have this website as master and a slave one using the same files, same template, same modules, but different articles, how can i do that?

Thank you very much. :)

==========

Re: Same files, different database?

Posted by edwin2win - 2010/05/02 12:09

By default, when you create a slave site, you have specific content (menu, sections, categories, articles, forum, ...). Only the PHP code (the files and folders) are shared between the websites.

You can only share some extension content (DB tables) between websites.

If you are on unix platform with Symbolic Link allowed, then to create websites that share the same files (including the templates directory), you have to create a JMS template rule that declare the "files and folder" tabs with Symbolic Link action for all the folders and "Special Copy" for the images and "templates" folder.

See tutorial video 0.b slide 34 and CP-05
http://www.jms2win.com/tutorial#jms12x-0b
http://www.jms2win.com/tutorial#jms12x-CP-05

Concerning the modules, you will have to re-install them in each slave sites.
If you create a "pre-configured" slave site with all the module installed, this can help you create the other slave site faster with the pre-installed modules.

==========

Re: Same files, different database?

Posted by AnyWay - 2010/05/03 15:29

Thank you very much for your exhaustive answer :)

==========

Re: Same files, different database?

Posted by AnyWay - 2010/05/20 11:53

Hello,
My 2 domains are working, i've added one article to the slave and a different menu.

I'm trying to do it again!

Additional info:
Master: http://www.chat-senza-registrazione.com/
Slave: http://www.chat.chat-senza-registrazione.com/
If you open them, they have different content. If you open /administrator of both, they have same content! How's that possible?! How do i modify the content of slave site?

Thank you again.

SOLVED:
I had to access to the admin side of the site without www, or i was redirected to the master site!

==========