To be clear vor everyone

Posted by ride2esc - 2010/06/11 11:19

I had an argue with a friend the other days..about installing JMS component on different hosting servers.

As i understand from Edwin, i am allowed to install on other server, but i will share the license key with the 2nd hosting.

Q1. Edwin - are we allowed to sell the component after we buy it, if we are agree to share license key?

Q2. Edwin - are we allowed to give for free the component after we buy it, if we are agree to share license key?

Q3. In any cases from Q1, and Q2, the support on this forum is it available?

Thank you, and keep up the good work.

==========

Re: To be clear vor everyone

Posted by edwin2win - 2010/06/11 18:49

You are not allowed to resell the version you have purchased.
JMS is attached to the user in jms2win.com that has purchased JMS and that is used for the registration.

If you want to provide JMS to one of your customer, you have to create another account in jms2win.com and purchase JMS with this account and transfert this info to your customer.
This may be the case when you are a company that develop a website for a customer and that you want that your customer be able to perform the update and manage JMS himself.

In all cases anybody (event that have not purchased JMS) can post messages in this forum and you can see that some of them also post "before to buy questions"

==========