Which Template Framework?

Posted by king.lui - 2010/10/30 23:22

Hi,

I've read that the Gantry framework is not the best for using with JMS. What's about other template frameworks like Joomlarts T3, Yoothemes Warp or the Morphs framework? Which is the best for using with JMS?

Thanks and cheers

==========

Re: Which Template Framework?

Posted by edwin2win - 2010/10/31 00:11

I don't know the T3.

Concerning the Yoothemes WARP, the same problem as already mentioned for Rockethemes.

None of them as soon as they rewrite the framework.

Our company is not responsible to fix each templates delivered by the companies that does not want to fix their internal libraries.

We have a customer who provided us some patches for Yoothemes but when we tried to used them for a customer, this failed. So we never publish them.

If you want to get them compatible, perhaps you could ask these companies to publish framework that is multisites compatible.

We can just tell you that Rocketthemes declined to do that when we contacted them.

Perhaps that you (customers) could be convinced the templates company to take in account of the "multisites" functionalities.

==========

Re: Which Template Framework?

Posted by king.lui - 2010/10/31 00:18

I am very interested in Morph: http://www.prothemer.com/morph/
It's really wonderful. I've asked the the prothemers...

Thanks and cheers

==========

Re: Which Template Framework?
Posted by edwin2win - 2010/10/31 06:13

If you want that we test some of their themes (templates), send us some of them in the attachement of an email. We will tell you if their framework is working.

==========

Re: Which Template Framework?
Posted by king.lui - 2010/11/02 22:24

---

edwin2win wrote:
I don't know the T3.
You don't know T3? It's from Joomlart and Gavick is using it also:
http://wiki.joomlart.com/wiki/JA_Template_Framework/Overview

But I'm worry that all template frameworks are problematical.
Are there any infos which templates are problematical and which not?

Thanks and cheers

==========

Re: Which Template Framework?
Posted by edwin2win - 2010/11/02 23:18

Only the template that are using specific frameworks.
When the template use the standard joomla framework they are working.

You can generally find templates in Joomlart that are not using their new T3 framework.

==========

Re: Which Template Framework?
Posted by king.lui - 2010/11/03 10:21

Yes, but they're not so nice :-)
I will send you Morph framework with some themelets for testing.

Thanks and cheers..

==========

Re: Which Template Framework?
Posted by rachely476 - 2010/11/11 09:51

---

king.lui wrote:
I am very interested in Morph: http://www.prothemer.com/morph/
It's really wonderful. I've asked the the prothemers...

Thanks and cheers

Thanks for sharing the link!

==========

Re:Which Template Framework?
Posted by Joomladdict - 2011/02/08 21:15

I need JMS to build out a bunch of sites that all use the same template and modules, but the modules contain different content. I have build a custom template using a RocketTheme template as the base, which is powered by Gantry.

Does RocketTheme's Gantry Framework not work at all with JMS MultiSites... or do certain parameters not work?

Thanks in advance.

==========

Re:Which Template Framework?
Posted by edwin2win - 2011/02/08 22:49

The RocketThemes gantry does not read correctly the template settings in the slave site.
It always read the settings that you setup in the master whatever you enter in a slave.

We have experimented some patches that does not work in all cases.
Some bug fix seems need to be implemented in encrypted javascript peace of present in gantry but we don't have yet found where.

==========

Re:Which Template Framework?
Posted by Joomladdict - 2011/02/09 17:48

---

edwin2win wrote:
The RocketThemes gantry does not read correctly the template settings in the slave site.
It always read the settings that you setup in the master whatever you enter in a slave.

We have experimented some patches that does not work in all cases.
Some bug fix seems need to be implemented in encrypted javascript peace of present in gantry but we don't have yet found where.

Thanks Edwin! My project involves building out many sites that have an identical template, only the content and images differ.

Just to make sure I understand you correctly: whatever template the Master uses, the Slaves will automatically adopt. And all Gantry features still work... like Google Fonts, CSS Color Chooser, etc.

Are their any other known problems using Gantry with JMS?

==========

Re:Which Template Framework?

Posted by edwin2win - 2011/02/10 21:14

As I told you, the settings will work on the master and not in the slave.
This is the settings in the master that affect all the slaves.
So all the features like CSS Color Chooser must be done in the master and not in the slaves.

==========

Re:Which Template Framework?

Posted by Joomladdict - 2011/02/11 17:35

Perfect, thanks Edwin!

==========