Sharing same component as in master to child site

Posted by yogesh_g - 2011/12/21 07:29

I install jomsocial component in master site, it's community related component.
How I share same component to child site also , means same user table , registration for user has to go same table. means user register any one of site he registered all the site because of same user table and same registration steps only for this ,instead all other thinks are like different article, different template etc in all site

==========

Re: Sharing same component as in master to child site

Posted by edwin2win - 2011/12/22 15:51

See the tutorial video 16
http://www.jms2win.com/en/tutorial#jms12x-16

If you want to share the users with the "master", when you create the JMS Template rule to share the users, select the "master db" instead of the "slave 1" website as illustrated in the video

==========