Alpha User Points and Virtuemart Sharing

Posted by slboone - 2010/01/04 03:58

Hi Again,

I want to allow my slave sites to share the Alpha User Points and Virtuemart files from the Main Site. I selected both of the check boxes on my template Sharing page but when deploying a slave site, I get multiple mysql errors. Are you required to also share Community Builder if you are sharing Alpha User Points and Virtuemart? If not, Can you tell me why I might be receiving these errors?

Thank you for your help!

Sondra

==========

Re: Alpha User Points and Virtuemart Sharing

Posted by edwin2win - 2010/01/04 08:59

Sharing "Alpha User Point" share Alpha User Point + Joomla Users;
Sharing "VirtueMart" shares "virtuemart" + Joomla Users;

I don't see why you mention Community Builder because I don't see relationship with the other two extensions.
As you have not provided the MySQL error I can just imagine that they correspond to a MySQL permission error like "command denied to user".
If this is the case, you have to check the MySQL user privileges when sharing the extensiions.
It is required that MySQL user has the privilege to create and show views.

==========

Re: Alpha User Points and Virtuemart Sharing

Posted by slboone - 2010/01/04 16:45

I'm sorry I didn't provide the detailed errors, that would have helped, huh? I was wondering if they had to share community builder since that is the user interface we are using. However, you are correct it is the command denied to user error. I will check with the hosting company now!

Thank you again!

Sondra

==========