Issue user component sharing with all sites

Posted by sharma - 2011/07/26 18:19

We are trying to implement a solution, where we want user component not to be shared with all the slave sites.

Currently, we have the user component installed in master site. When we create a new site, the user component is also shared. So when we make changes in slave site, it get reflected on other site.

Does any one has faced this issue? If yes, please share the solution with us.

==========

Re: Issue user component sharing with all sites

Posted by edwin2win - 2011/07/27 09:13

If you decided to share the users, this is normal that you have the same info present in the other website.

If you create a copy, a clone of a website, you will get an initial website with exactly the same content (including the users).

So the solution is to replicate the website and not share the users

==========