Cross domain

Posted by martinn2009 - 2013/04/06 13:13

Hi,

I am interest in jms2win.com. but before buy this components
I would like to know your suggestion/explanation

I have 2 domain: let say that: buy and sale website.

A. sample.com = master
- for buyer_user
- installed com_builder
- installed com_easydiscuss
- registeration invite only

B. example.com :
- for seller_user
- seller_user can post an ask and question in discussion
- registration open for all visitor

both domain above are not in the same server, is it possible?

Regards,

==========

Re: Cross domain

Posted by edwin2win - 2013/04/06 13:54

The concept of Jms Multi Sites is based on the sharing of the same Joomla application.

Therefore, it is assume that both website are on the same server.

You can have such configuration with different domain on the same server and use for example the cPanel "Addon Domain" to declare the different domain.

Create an infrastructure that works on different serveral is not impossible but is not easy. Therefore we do not recommend it and support it. We did it only once as "experimental" configuration.

If you want to share information between the websites, you would also need to give permission accross server and also potentially accross MySQL.
In despite the fact that it is not impossible, this is complex.

So I prefer to tell you no.

==========